A Member Profile

"Cetonia"

The boat design is by Iain Oughtred a well respected small boat designer, who although born in Melbourne now lives on the Isle of Skye. He has a catalogue of his many designs, the "Gannet" being one of his day sailing dinghies.

The construction uses the glued lapstrake method. The boat is built upside down on a building frame onto which 8 moulds determine the shape of the boat between the stem and the transom. On the plan of each mould, the stem and the transom are points on which each strake should lie. Each strake (plank) overlaps the one above it, in the upside down position, by about 15mm and is glued to the one above with epoxy. The strakes are 6mm ply scarf jointed to provide length and shaped to a fair line.

A very proud Ian Colledge brought his newly finished project to the Shed last week before venturing out on the water for its maiden voyage. Ian takes up the story.....

"Building a boat starts with a lot of thinking, reading and planning. You learn many skills and make many friends in the process. It seems that a new boat under construction attracts other wooden boat builders like bees to a honey pot.

Why build it yourself?. As all "woodies" know, it may be quicker to buy a new wooden item, but the real satisfaction comes from building it yourself.

Why build a boat? Well, my father spent 5 years of my boyhood building a boat in the back yard then built others under the house. It gets into the blood. It is a very satisfying experience. After 19 months gestation there is created something that has character, style and gender. Just look at her?"

Once the planking is finished the boat is turned over and then fitted out. It then progressively becomes stronger and more rigid.

The boat is 4.4m long, has a beam of 1.73m, and carries 10.96 m<sup>2</sup> of sail. It was built in my shed over a 19 months period.

Dave Banister continues his world tour.....

Hi to all,

Arrived Edinburgh airport to wet conditions but happy to be in a country that I have always wanted to visit. After sorting out my accommodation at Belford Hostel (a revamped church) that has been a backpackers for 25yrs, (its a comfortable walk to Edinburgh Castle and down town), arranged usual tours of city etc. with hop on hop off bus group. After wasting 2 days with the Australian Consulate trying to arrange for my stolen drivers licence to be replaced I moved on to plan B. Was told of a tour group that visited the areas that I wanted to go. MacBackpackers was the best outfit that I found—it was mainly aimed at up to 40 age group but after a little negotiating they decided to let me tag along. (must be his baby face...Ed) Top outfit and a week I'll never forget...Isle of Skye....striking scenery of Torridon

Eilean Donan Castle...

Glen Coe and the tragic history that goes with this area, Corrieshalloch Gorge, Inverness the Capital of the Highlands. These people are a very proud lot.

We went Nussy hunting in the Loch....no luck, visited another whisky distillery, then to Killiecrankie where another battle took place. Pitlochry was holding the Highland Games, and we got to see them tossing the caber, also having a feed of haggis, (I went back for seconds as it wasn't too bad), then heading south to Dunkeld and a walk through the scrub in an area known as Hermitage. Back on our bus and on to St Andrews...a lot of history with golf, universities, and destruction of churches and castles. Then the Kingdom of Fife and a good look at the famous Forth Bridge. Our tour finished back at Edinburgh and then I hopped on to a train to Glasgow to spend 3 nights at another hostel near the station, and repeated the touring with hop on hop off buses—this place was better than I expected. Arranged a ticket from Glasgow to Belfast, Ireland with Rail and Sail. The ferry is the fastest in the world for its size and very comfortable,

More of Ireland later as the Editor is awaiting this transcript so will close now,

All the best Dave B.XXX for the Sheilas.
